Dear Teacher,

I started Read it. Write it. Learn it. in 2017 after creating my first escape room. I was so excited about the experience that I wanted to share my ideas with other teachers in classrooms across the country. My escape rooms ended up being shared around the world! They were such a hit, I decided to start sharing the rest of my curriculum. After teaching 7th grade for over 20 years, I know that kids learn best when they are engaged and active. All of my lessons are designed to be engaging, interactive, and standards-based.

In addition to my experiences in the classroom, I am a national speaker and a published author. I have also worked as a curriculum ambassador for grades 6-12 ELA in my school district and as an ambassador of the Common Core for surrounding districts. As New York State worked to shift to the new standards, I helped to train fellow teachers, sharing both the standards and different methods of adapting lessons to meet new expectations. Most recently, I've developed and led teachers in my district through training in standards based learning and grading. I know how many expectations teachers are overwhelmed with, and my greatest joy comes from knowing that the quality, standards-based lessons and materials I create can help save teachers time so they can focus on enjoying the learning process with their students.

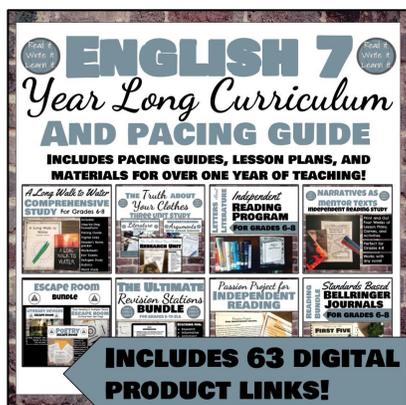

I share my teaching adventures on my blog and on social media:
